

GUILESHILL FARM

Client: - Private owner

The works comprised the repair and remodelling of redundant farm buildings into residential units for sale on the open market. The buildings were in a poor state of repair and required significant restoration whilst keeping as many original features as possible. As part of the development an oak framed barn was restored and converted into a communal facility for the use of the residents.

Nye Saunders provided full architectural services on the project and the building works were undertaken on a traditional JCT contract format.

The project won a Country Landowners Association award in 1992.

Contractor: Deeks & Steere
